FAQs:

What is a retractable rangehood?

A rangehood is designed to extract smoke, gas, steam and odours from a cooking space to allow for a fresher and cleaner atmosphere. A retractable rangehood fits in above your cooktop and can be tucked away and pulled out only when needed.

Why buy a retractable rangehood?

Retractable rangehoods are ideal for smaller kitchens, where being able to 'hide-away' bigger functional pieces is of benefit. A retractable rangehood can also be suitable for a minimalist kitchen design where you wish to have the look of overhead cupboards along the top of your cooktop instead of the look of a wall mounted rangehood..

Things to consider when buying a rangehood

Sourcing a rangehood that is the right size for your cook-top is the first step. You also need to ensure that the unit itself will fit into the space above your cook-top. Make sure you accurately measure both of these things before deciding on your purchase. You'll also need to decide whether you want a ducted rangehood or one that will recycle the air back into your kitchen. A ducted rangehood is the most effective solution, however this option is not always suitable due to the extra work and space required to install.

If you have a particularly tall ceiling then you may also need to consider a flue extension.
